

GRAINYIELD IS SMALLEST IN 30 YEARS

Wallace Claims There Is No Danger Of Food Shortage

By Stephen J. McDonough, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Aug. 10.—(P)—The smallest yield of grain in 30 years or more was predicted today by federal reporters, but Secretary Wallace reiterated there was no danger of food shortage.

The drought's ravages affected not only the grain crops but directly or indirectly the entire food supply of the nation and cotton as well.

For example, the crop reporting board forecast that this year's production of corn would be only 1,697,104,000 bushels, a decline of more than a half billion bushels over its estimate of conditions on July 1. The average yield of this important feed and food crop is around 2,500,000,000 bushels.

The wheat yield, to the surprise of many observers, increased six million bushels today over the July prediction. The estimate today was 490,900,000 bushels, but that figure is the lowest since the 1890's.

The dry state, both directly and indirectly, is rapidly running the nation's meat supply. Millions of cattle and sheep are being bought by the government, both because they are starving now from lack of feed and water and also because there will be no feed for them in the months to come.

But the secretary of agriculture, although visibly concerned over the too enthusiastic co-operation that the drought has given the farm administration's surplus reduction campaigns, said that even though the customary supply of "steak and chops" would be reduced next year, "there will be plenty of food to keep everyone in the best of health."

He said food prices would be higher, but he doubted the farmer would receive any more for his products than he did in 1914.

The aim of the farm act is to give the growers prices that are on a parity with those in the 1909-1914 period.

The secretary revealed his administration intended to do all it could to prevent food profiteering and that there might be a temporary abandonment of intensive acreage control next year. He said, however, it was planned to retain "some sort of control" even though acreage restrictions were not exercised in 1935, and that he felt his administration's program had helped to ease the drought situation.

All in all, crop prospects as a whole declined 11 per cent from the July estimate, based on the basis of conditions July 1, and the estimate today made on Aug. 1 prospects.

The wheat, crop, if government figures are borne out, will be about 7 per cent below the 1933 crop of 527,978,000 bushels and almost 45 per cent lower than the 1927-31 average of 886,350,000 bushels.

Regarding the general outlook, the report said, "growing conditions are poor practically everywhere except along the Atlantic coast, in the eastern cotton belt and in the Pacific northwest."

LIKES CHINCH BUGS

Geneseo, Ill., Aug. 10.—(P)—Grant Wolf, farmer near here, today had a good word for the chinch bug, usually considered a pest.

Wolf said an army of the bugs invaded his watermelon patch destroying all the grass and sandbars and departed leaving the vines untouched. Now he doesn't have to cultivate the field for some time.

WEATHER

For Jacksonville and vicinity—Scattered showers and slightly cooler with the weatherman's promise for today. Sunday will be partly cloudy.

Cripple Scales Pike's Peak On Hands And Knees

Colorado Springs, Aug. 10.—(P)—Raymond Phelps scaled Pike's Peak today although he can't walk.

He did it on his hands and knees—13 hours of toil up the cog road—and then said:

"It was marvelous—simply wonderful. It was worth all the effort, and believe me, it was some tough climb."

The scaling of the 14,000-foot peak fulfilled an ambition of a life-time.

For 26 years the young ranger has lived with a view of the lofty mountain framed by a west window in his ranch house.

Yesterday, about 4 p. m. Phelps and three friends, William Townley, Bill Rapp and Ralph Teeters, started the ascent. Phelps wore leather pads on his knees and leather gloves on his hands.

They reached the top, after many rests, at 7 a. m. today.

CALL STRIKE IN ALL PLANTS OF ALUMINUM FIRM

Walkout Called When Agreement Cannot Be Reached

Washington, Aug. 10.—(P)—A strike in all plants of the Aluminum company of America at midnight was called today by the Aluminum Workers' Council after weeks of fruitless efforts to reach an agreement.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor, asserting the walkout was decided upon as a last resort, said it was authorized by the federation because "the company has failed to make any concession to the workers' demands."

The national labor relations board, which tried unsuccessfully to effect a settlement in the controversy yesterday, had not been officially apprised of the strike call late today. Its future action was problematical.

Time Short

It was explained the board's connection with the dispute between the Aluminum company, controlled by the powerful and wealthy Mellon family, and its unionized employees had been merely that of a mediator. Whether it would exercise its powers in an attempt to avert the strike was regarded as probable, although the time for action was short.

The strike originally had been set for July 25 but was postponed pending mediation efforts.

Boris Shishkin, of the American Federation of Labor, who announced the calling of the strike, said the demands of the workers included the check-off system of collecting union dues, a seniority rule and a universal wage system which would give employees performing similar operations the same wage scale in each of the company's plants.

He denied the workers demanded a closed-shop agreement.

The company has rejected each of the demands, he said, contending the union wanted a closed shop and elimination of the north-south wage differential "which now exists in our industry as well as in all others."

Shishkin said the strike would affect plants of the company in East St. Louis, Ill.; New Kensington, Pa.; Arndol, Pa.; Logan's Ferry, Pa.; Massena, N. Y.; Baden, N. C., and Alcoa, Tenn.

The federation official added that approximately 15,000 workers are involved by the strike order.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; FIVE ARE KILLED

Vermontville, Mich., Aug. 10.—(P)—A collision between an automobile and a Michigan Central passenger train here tonight claimed five lives and hurled the locomotive off the tracks and into a ditch. The engine crew escaped with slight bruises.

Four of the dead, all occupants of the automobile, were identified by Deputy Sheriff K. K. Ward as Mr. and Mrs. Dale McClintock, living near Charlotte, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cook, living near Lacey Lake, Mich.

The fifth victim, believed to have been a transient riding the tender of the locomotive, was not immediately identified.

Ward said the body still was under the overturned engine.

ARREST FUGITIVE

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(P)—Police tonight said they arrested Howard Beck, alias Howard Richards, 29, fugitive from a Florida chain gang where he was serving a sentence for the killing of a policeman.

Local officers said they arrested the man on information that he was hiding on the city's south side.

When the policemen made their arrest at 6321 Emerald avenue they were confronted by a woman who said she was the man's bride. She said she knew nothing about his prison record.

ONLY SIX WORDS

Tannenberg, Germany, Aug. 10.—(P)—In accordance with a wish expressed in his will only six words will appear on the tomb of President Von Hindenburg. They are:

"Paul Von Hindenburg, 1847 to 1934."

ARCHBISHOP DIES

Halifax, Aug. 10.—(P)—Archbishop C. L. Worrell, primate of the Church of England in Canada, died in a hospital tonight. He had been ill three weeks.

PRICES SUBSIDE IN SPECULATIVE MARKETS FRIDAY

Relapse No Surprise To Traders In Securities

By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor.

New York, Aug. 10.—(P)—Wall Street's second thoughts on silver nationalization were more subdued today and prices subsided in speculative markets.

Silver prices showed but little inclination to rise in foreign markets. A domestic price of 49 1/2 cents an ounce, up 1 cent from yesterday, and just under the price of 50.01 cents at which all silver not needed in the industry must be turned into the mint within three months, was fixed by Handy & Harman, leading bullion brokers. The Shanghai market rose a little, but spot silver in London was unchanged.

Shares React

Shares, which had cotton reacted in the domestic markets, about canceling yesterday's gains. Bonds remained under pressure, including U. S. governments. The dollar stiffened in foreign exchange dealings, however. After the close of European markets sterling and the French franc receded to show small losses in New York.

The rise in stocks yesterday appeared to have been due chiefly to the fright of the shorts at the unexpected silver news, so that a relapse today was not regarded as surprising. In wheat and cotton, profit taking after their sharp advances recently was also regarded as a normal expectation.

Corn remained firm, reflecting continued drought damage the past few days, and finished unchanged to 1 1/2 of a cent a bushel higher at Chicago. Wheat, however, lost 13 to 14 cents a bushel, and cotton at New York 85 cents to 81 a bale.

The speculative silver market, that is, the dealing in contracts for future delivery of the metal, seemed to have been definitely ended in New York. The commodity exchange, which suspended trading in silver futures at noon yesterday, announced today that all outstanding commitments were settled at 49 1/2 cents an ounce.

A fairly free market for actual silver for immediate delivery seemed to be in prospect, however, as the treasury said it had no intention of interfering with silver imports or in the dealings in metal for industrial uses. Bullion brokers were functioning as usual.

While the removing of all the American surplus stocks from the markets by nationalization was construed as theoretically bullish on silver, it was felt that the world price would depend largely upon how actively the treasury decided to extend its accumulation of metal to foreign markets.

To bring its silver up to 25 per cent of total metallic monetary reserves, it must still buy much more silver than it will get by nationalizing domestic stock. The treasury is taking in all the domestic mine production at 64 1/2 cents an ounce, but this new silver is scarcely a drop in the bucket to the amount required to carry out the objectives of the silver purchase act.

FARM BUREAU WILL OPPOSE DOLE SYSTEM

Urge Curtailment Of Unemployment Relief

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(P)—Directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation today urged curtailment of the present system of unemployment relief in the United States and condemned "what appears to be a fast developing dole system."

Closing its annual quarterly session, the board also adopted a resolution urging that the Tennessee Valley authority avoid duplication of existing agricultural services and farm organizations, and that the major portion of the power produced at Muscle Shoals be used to produce cheap fertilizer.

Encourage Dole System

Charging that a Dole system is being encouraged by communistic and socialistic influences, the board declared:

"This system now operating as temporary unemployment relief is fast becoming a permanent system and unless immediately curtailed will destroy American ideals and the self respect of millions of our citizens."

"The American farmers desire that every deserving citizen should have an ample supply of food, clothing and shelter. They believe in and support reasonable wages for all workers but condemn a system of government unemployment relief or charity that encourages idleness and indifference to emergency employment at comparatively lower wages."

The directors requested officers of the bureau to call the attention of the Farm Credit administration to the rural credits resolutions adopted by the bureau at its last annual meeting, "and insist that, while appreciating their efforts and progress to date, more emphasis and effort be made to develop existing cooperative credit institutions; to reduce interest rates and costs and to so guide the development of the Farm Credit administration credit institutions as to make them truly farmer owned and controlled."

GIRL MASQUERADES AS BOY FOR YEAR IN ST. PAUL, MINN.

St. Paul, Aug. 10.—(P)—A 14-year-old 90 pound Iowa girl, who successfully masqueraded as a boy for one year, attending high school here where she was employed in the home of a woman, was "unmasked" last night after she fled from a doctor who was to examine her.

After fleeing from the doctor, she found sanctuary in the home of an aunt where Mrs. Minnie Hessian, police woman, found her.

"She is a sweet little mite of a thing," Mrs. Hessian said. "Her tiny figure encased in boys knickers and sweater is just as cute as can be. She always wanted to be a boy and this was the means she selected."

A year ago she came here dressed as a boy and obtained employment in the home of Mrs. J. J. Hannahan. Last spring, Mrs. Hannahan became suspicious when the "boy" known as "Skippy" disappeared just before the spring school examinations and then returned in time to graduate.

This week Skippy became ill and listlessly did "his work." Mrs. Hannahan referred the "boy" to her family doctor—but Skippy refused to go.

Last night she insisted and when the doctor attempted to make the examination the "boy" bit him on the finger and fled after police said "fighting savagely to escape."

No prosecution under the law forbidding the masquerading in clothing of another sex is anticipated, according to Mrs. Hessian.

Police refused to divulge the name of the "boy."

APPROVE LOANS

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(P)—Max Epstein, chairman of the advisory committee of the seventh federal reserve district, said today that 27 loans to industry totalling $1,635,600 have been approved by his committee.

The loans, which range from $800 to $300,000, will go to five states, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. The loans await final approval of the Chicago federal reserve bank. Epstein refused to make public the names of firms whose applications were approved.

PANAMA QUAKE

Panama, Aug. 10.—(P)—A slight earthquake shook Panama, Cristobal and Madden Dam today. Although many buildings were cracked the Canal Locks were undamaged. There were no casualties.

Flood Inundates Part of Kentucky, Rains Reported In Strip of Middlewest

Central Illinois Visited By Heavy Rain Last Night

By The Associated Press.

A flood—an almost forgotten trouble— inundated a part of Kentucky Friday after showers and substantial rains had freshened at least a strip of the water-hungry middle west.

The southwest—where a cloudburst in Denver had taken five lives—hoped the unexpected rain meant the beginning of the end for the drought which had put even 1935 crops in peril.

Weather experts, however, would make few predictions from the rains. They laid them to an "air collision." Cool air from central Canada, they said, had drifted into the midwest, bumped into oven-hot atmosphere there and caused the precipitation.

Heat Tempered

Whatever they did for the farm belt's wilted crops, the rains tempered the intense heat wave in all but a few states. The day saw the temperature drop from its three figure highs in all the midcontinent states except Missouri and Kansas, which were misled by even so much as a shower.

The mercury climbed again to marks of 106 and 107 in those overheated states and approached 100 in downstate Illinois. Fifteen more heat fatalities were reported—seven in St. Louis, birthing the summer's total to 407, one in Jefferson City, Mo., and four in Kansas City. Two died in Chicago, one in Michigan.

Hottest town in the plains states was Topeka, Kansas, where noon found the mercury at 109 degrees, the highest reading ever reported for that time of day and within two degrees of the all time heat mark.

It was 107 for the seventh consecutive day in Kansas City, and for the 56th consecutive day, the mercury went above 100 at Emporia, Kansas.

Kentucky's flood was in Carter and Rowan counties. The waters of Tygart creek were still rising after a downpour had washed away some homes and much growing crops and left the town of Olive Hill almost completely under water.

At Bereahead, Ky., water stood two to three feet deep on the highway. The rainfall, starting at midnight, was estimated at six inches.

The scenery of northern Nebraska, baked by a blazing sun for many weeks, was changed in startling rapidity by violent rainstorms. Bridges over trickling creeks were washed out and the North Platte river, almost dried away before, ran full to its banks.

The rain, ranging from showers to falls of two inches, ran a wet streak across the map west from Lower Michigan through Iowa to Colorado, Ohio had lighter rains, Pittsburgh, Pa. had more than half an inch.

In southeastern Wyoming natives hailed general rains as having broken the drought. A heavy wind and rain storm swept northern Indiana. Fairly heavy rains spotted the plains of western and northern Nebraska, with a two inch downpour at Ansora.

Iowa got a scattered rainfall, and the mercury slid down to as low as 63 degrees. Nearly an inch fell at Dixon, Ill. Large sections of eastern Texas had good rains, and slightly cooler weather followed.

While the mercury was down, excessive humidity caused suffering in many sections. New York reported a relative humidity of 98 per cent at one reading. Muggy weather also prevailed in parts of Michigan.

Clouds shut off the sun for much of the central plains region and rain showers were in prospect there, along with cooler weather, at least briefly.

ROOSEVELT HAS RETURNED FROM 13,000 MILE TRIP

Studies Problems That Accumulated During Absence

By Francis M. Stephenson, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Aug. 10.—(P)—Bronzed and buoyant, President Roosevelt returned to the white house today after a 13,000 mile trip to begin immediately a study of the problems that have accumulated during his absence.

Gone 41 days, the president's vacation tour had carried him to American possessions in the Atlantic and Pacific and across the North American continent.

He went over the business situation with Secretary Morgenthau and then reviewed the latest international developments with Secretary Hull.

Routine Conferences

Both late afternoon conferences were described as routine and principally to inform Mr. Roosevelt of last minute events. He kept constantly posted throughout his long journey.

It was a sun tanned and smiling president who came off the special train at noon after a record-breaking trip from Chicago of sixteen hours. He stopped to congratulate the train crew and then waved to a crowd of well-wishers standing in the hot sun in the railroad yard.

At any new moves are in contemplation on the monetary program or in relation to the general business situation, including the drought, they were not disclosed, or indicated.

Members of the cabinet boarded the president's private car upon its arrival at the union station and the meeting was purely an exchange of greetings. Secretaries Ickes and Dern came with Mr. Roosevelt from his inspection of internal improvements in the northwest.

The drought situation which was so realistically reviewed to the president on his ride across the northwest area is down on the white house calendar for constant surveillance.

After several weeks the president plans to go to his family home at Hyde Park, New York, to spend probably the month of September. He is unable to use the executive office here which is now under complete reconstruction to make available more working space for the white house staff.

Mrs. Anna Curtis Dall, daughter of the president, joined him in his private car. John, youngest son, completed the wide swinging tour with his father.

GEORGE W. HILL FILM DIRECTOR TAKES OWN LIFE

Body Found By Valet in Bedroom With Bullet Hole in Head

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 10.—(P)—The unclad body of George William Hill, 39, director of many outstanding motion picture films, was found in the bedroom of his beach home here today by his valet. Police said it was a case of suicide, probably because of ill health.

There was a bullet wound in the head and a hole in the ceiling torn by a lead slug from the death weapon. Investigators said the director had fired into the ceiling to test the pistol before turning the muzzle to his head.

The body was cremated. Loyd Wright, the director's attorney, said this was done in compliance with a request made by Hill. There would be no funeral services but a private memorial service will be held later.

Hill, who began his movie career as a stage hand under David Wark Griffith, originator of the Multi-reel film spectacles, left no notes explaining the act. A meal on a table was untouched.

For two months the director had been receiving treatment for injuries received when he swerved his automobile off a telephone pole to avoid crashing into a group of children.

Hill was born in Douglas, Kansas, April 25, 1895. Under Griffith he began work in the movies in 1908. From stage hand he graduated to cameraman. Then he turned to writing and finally to directing.

Among Hill's notable success in films were "Get Your Man," "While the Devil Laughs," "The Hill Billy," "The Barrier," "Sander the Great," "The Midnight Express," "The Foolish Virgin," "The Limited Mail," "The Callahans and the Murphys," "Big House," "The Secret Six" and "Hell Divers."

REPUBLICANS TO SEND SPEAKERS INTO DOWNSTATE

C. Wayland Brooks And Milton Jones Will Make Tour

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 10.—(P)—Republican campaign managers today decided to send additional speakers on the downstate tours to start August 20, during State Fair week.

Optimistic about the showing made at yesterday's state convention, Chairman Justus L. Johnson announced that Harold Williams of Taylorville will accompany C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago and Milton E. Jones of Greenville-at-large, when they start out from Taylorville.

On the second week of the tour, Williams will be replaced by Representative R. J. Branson of central. Other speakers will appear during the following weeks.

Representative Richard Lyons of Libertyville will accompany William J. Stratton, candidate for the state treasurer, and Francis G. Blair, superintendent of public instruction, when they start their tour at Carrolton.

Local candidates for the legislature will appear with the state-wide nominees. On Oct. 6 Stratton, Blair, Brooks and Jones are to transfer their activities to Cook county.

WHOOPIING COUGH

Callander, Ont., Aug. 10.—(P)—Whooping cough in the neighborhood of the Dionne farm gave concern today to the parents and guardians of the famous 74-day-old quintuplets.

The epidemic is of a mild type, said Dr. A. R. DaFoe today, and there is no present indication it will affect the five larger children or other members of the Dionne household.

Mussolini Tells American Italy Has "Free Press"

PICKETING MAY BE RESUMED AT MINNEAPOLIS

Rome, Aug. 10.—(P)—Paul Block, American newspaper publisher, asked Premier Mussolini today if he did not think the world would applaud if it Duce gave Italy a free press.

"But we have a free press" was the reply of the premier who smiled broadly.

Block's interrogation came at the end of a 30-minute talk at the Venezia palace.

"I have found everybody here loyal to you and enthusiastic over your work," Block said. "Wouldn't you now do something the whole world would applaud if you were to give Italy the most precious thing that any country can have, namely a free press?"

"I Duce smiled amiably.

"I assure you we now have a free press," he replied. "But if a newspaperman writes what we know would hurt our people and our government we call his attention to it."

HUGH JOHNSON MAY RETIRE AS NRA DIRECTOR

Administrator Says Many NRA Employees Will Be Dropped

By William L. Beale, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Aug. 10.—(P)—Hugh S. Johnson's personal notice of a slash in NRA personnel today thrust to the fore again the ever present capital question of when the government's business boss himself will retire to private life.

Most informed quarters forecast the answer would develop in conferences between Mr. Roosevelt and Johnson before the president leaves Washington for his Hyde Park home. In these same meetings, NRA's entire future may be shaped.

Johnson notified his employees—of whom there are about 3,300, with 2-300 in Washington—that a decline in the volume of blue eagle work meant dropping some employees. His message said:

"To every employee of NRA: On June 16th I had occasion to call you all together to thank you for the devoted work you have put in under our program during its first year. I told you then that you need not feel insecure as to your jobs.

"We are now confronted with the necessity for a slight education in personnel because the work that has to be done has declined in volume, but I want you to know that I am laying down a rule that no person who has been efficient in this organization shall be let go without a period of notice, and this organization will endeavor to find other employment for those no longer needed."

Friends of the administrator believed that as rapidly as blue eagle work settled into the routine of code enforcement, Johnson's own desire to cut loose from the government would grow. His energies chiefly have been spent in creating and building a new conception of business control.

Before President Roosevelt's Hawaii trip and Johnson's own western tour, the administrator recommended creation of a commission to run NRA pending more legislation by the next congress. Unopposed, the recovery organization dies next June.

PROGRESS SLOW IN DEBT PARLEY

Washington, Aug. 10.—(P)—A conference between American and Soviet officials today on debts due this country apparently made little progress and one of the officials participating said the next few days would reveal whether there was an prospect of an agreement.

Those participating at the parley, which lasted more than an hour, included Secretary Hull, Alexander Troyanovsky, the Soviet ambassador, and Assistant Secretary Moore.

"We will know within a few days," Assistant Secretary Moore told newsmen, "whether there is any prospect of reaching an agreement."

Troyanovsky indicated scant progress, but said he was still optimistic that a settlement would be reached. The American claims include money loaned Russian governments prior to the Soviet and private property belonging to American citizens which was confiscated by the Communists.

Frequent parleys have been held on the subject since the United States recognized Russia.

WOMAN DIES WHILE ORCHESTRA PLAYS REQUEST NUMBER

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(P)—George Hesseberger, director of an orchestra at the World's Fair, last night had his orchestra play a request number—"Kiss Me Old Folks."

The number, broadcasted, was to fill a request for an elderly woman described as "very ill" by the person who asked the number. Today a telephone call came thanking him for the number—but there was a sob in the voice. The voice said the woman died during the number.

Efforts to learn the identity of the woman were futile.

LAST YEAR OF FAIR

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(P)—A Century of Progress Exposition, originally planned for 1933, which close at the end of this year, Rufus G. Dawes, president, made the announcement today in extending an invitation to farmers of the middle west to attend "Farm Week" starting Sunday.

"If you want to see Chicago's great Century of Progress Exposition," Dawes said, "You must do it this summer. It will not be here next year."

Last November the fair management extended its life through Nov. 1, 1934.

MRS. MASON DIES

LaSalle, Ill., Aug. 10.—(P)—Mrs. Margaret Mason, 98, mother of State Senator Noah M. Mason of Oglesby, president of the Illinois State Teachers Association, died today.

She is survived by 11 children, 81 grandchildren and 40 great-grandchildren.

Both Sides Awaiting Decision By Three Judges

WOMAN DIES WHILE ORCHESTRA PLAYS REQUEST NUMBER

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(P)—George Hesseberger, director of an orchestra at the World's Fair, last night had his orchestra play a request number—"Kiss Me Old Folks."

The number, broadcasted, was to fill a request for an elderly woman described as "very ill" by the person who asked the number. Today a telephone call came thanking him for the number—but there was a sob in the voice. The voice said the woman died during the number.

Efforts to learn the identity of the woman were futile.

LAST YEAR OF FAIR

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(P)—A Century of Progress Exposition, originally planned for 1933, which close at the end of this year, Rufus G. Dawes, president, made the announcement today in extending an invitation to farmers of the middle west to attend "Farm Week" starting Sunday.

"If you want to see Chicago's great Century of Progress Exposition," Dawes said, "You must do it this summer. It will not be here next year."

Last November the fair management extended its life through Nov. 1, 1934.

MRS. MASON DIES

LaSalle, Ill., Aug. 10.—(P)—Mrs. Margaret Mason, 98, mother of State Senator Noah M. Mason of Oglesby, president of the Illinois State Teachers Association, died today.

She is survived by 11 children, 81 grandchildren and 40 great-grandchildren.

STUDIES PROBLEMS THAT ACCUMULATED DURING ABSENCE

By The Associated Press.

A flood—an almost forgotten trouble— inundated a part of Kentucky Friday after showers and substantial rains had freshened at least a strip of the water-hungry middle west.

The southwest—where a cloudburst in Denver had taken five lives—hoped the unexpected rain meant the beginning of the end for the drought which had put even 1935 crops in peril.

Weather experts, however, would make few predictions from the rains. They laid them to an "air collision." Cool air from central Canada, they said, had drifted into the midwest, bumped into oven-hot atmosphere there and caused the precipitation.

Heat Tempered

Whatever they did for the farm belt's wilted crops, the rains tempered the intense heat wave in all but a few states. The day saw the temperature drop from its three figure highs in all the midcontinent states except Missouri and Kansas, which were misled by even so much as a shower.

The mercury climbed again to marks of 106 and 107 in those overheated states and approached 100 in downstate Illinois. Fifteen more heat fatalities were reported—seven in St. Louis, birthing the summer's total to 407, one in Jefferson City, Mo., and four in Kansas City. Two died in Chicago, one in Michigan.

Hottest town in the plains states was Topeka, Kansas, where noon found the mercury at 109 degrees, the highest reading ever reported for that time of day and within two degrees of the all time heat mark.

It was 107 for the seventh consecutive day in Kansas City, and for the 56th consecutive day, the mercury went above 100 at Emporia, Kansas.

Kentucky's flood was in Carter and Rowan counties. The waters of Tygart creek were still rising after a downpour had washed away some homes and much growing crops and left the town of Olive Hill almost completely under water.

At Bereahead, Ky., water stood two to three feet deep on the highway. The rainfall, starting at midnight, was estimated at six inches.

The scenery of northern Nebraska, baked by a blazing sun for many weeks, was changed in startling rapidity by violent rainstorms. Bridges over trickling creeks were washed out and the North Platte river, almost dried away before, ran full to its banks.

The rain, ranging from showers to falls of two inches, ran a wet streak across the map west from Lower Michigan through Iowa to Colorado, Ohio had lighter rains, Pittsburgh, Pa. had more than half an inch.

In southeastern Wyoming natives hailed general rains as having broken the drought. A heavy wind and rain storm swept northern Indiana. Fairly heavy rains spotted the plains of western and northern Nebraska, with a two inch downpour at Ansora.

Iowa got a scattered rainfall, and the mercury slid down to as low as 63 degrees. Nearly an inch fell at Dixon, Ill. Large sections of eastern Texas had good rains, and slightly cooler weather followed.

While the mercury was down, excessive humidity caused suffering in many sections. New York reported a relative humidity of 98 per cent at one reading. Muggy weather also prevailed in parts of Michigan.

Clouds shut off the sun for much of the central plains region and rain showers were in prospect there, along with cooler weather, at least briefly.

ADMINISTRATOR SAYS MANY NRA EMPLOYEES WILL BE DROPPED

By William L. Beale, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, Aug. 10.—(P)—Hugh S. Johnson's personal notice of a slash in NRA personnel today thrust to the fore again the ever present capital question of when the government's business boss himself will retire to private life.

Most informed quarters forecast the answer would develop in conferences between Mr. Roosevelt and Johnson before the president leaves Washington for his Hyde Park home. In these same meetings, NRA's entire future may be shaped.

Johnson notified his employees—of whom there are about 3,300, with 2-300 in Washington—that a decline in the volume of blue eagle work meant dropping some employees. His message said:

"To every employee of NRA: On June 16th I had occasion to call you all together to thank you for the devoted work you have put in under our program during its first year. I told you then that you need not feel insecure as to your jobs.

"We are now confronted with the necessity for a slight education in personnel because the work that has to

Raising Game Birds

The raising of quail is being tried on a large scale on a game farm near Windsor, Mo. The farm will furnish the state 5,000 birds for distribution this season. In the breeding pens are 250 pairs of quail, supplying enough eggs to keep a battery of incubators running constantly. Next year the farm management hopes to produce 10,000 quail.

Thus may be found a solution to the problem of increasing the wild game supply. Hunters have in the past almost exterminated some of the most common birds, but a system of game farms with such high production should be able to replenish the supply rapidly.

Proper enforcement of game laws and wise protection of the birds in refuges will aid the reproduction system. For those who know to use moderation, game shooting has a bright future. For the hunter who wants to abuse his privileges the law has strict penalties.

Strange Tax News

A new angle to the program by which the government raises money with which to pay farmers for not raising cotton, grain, hogs etc., comes to light with the closing of two cotton mills in Alabama. The mills were closed when the government made a formal demand for $25,000 of processing taxes alleged to be due from the textile factories. The government levied against the mills.

Five hundred people are employed in the two mills. They are now out of work. It will be interesting to see what the government will do. The processing taxes are due and payable, but if the companies cannot pay, will they be allowed to operate? If the mills cannot operate, there will be unemployment directly created thru a policy of one department of the government, while another spends millions trying to create employment.

There is an alternative, which was recently suggested by President Green of the American Federation of Labor when he said that if the unemployment is not checked, government might have to take over the means of production. It looks as if the government has a chance now to take over the two textile mills in lieu of processing taxes.

If the government allows the mills to operate without the taxes being paid, it is showing partiality and creating a precedent by which the entire system of processing taxes can be broken down. If it closes the mills, it is adding to unemployment. If it takes over the mills and operates them, it is going a long way toward socialism. The whole affair has brought Uncle Sam into something of a jam. What will he do?

Those Silver Shirts

When President Roosevelt nationalized silver he had no intention of encouraging the Silver Shirts, an alleged pro-Nazi organization which has recently created a stir in the west. A congressional committee probing un-American activities in Los Angeles extended its work to San Diego, and claims to have discovered a "regiment" of armed Silver Shirts that has been drilling regularly.

A onetime Marine corps corporal, working as an intelligence man, testified that he helped drill the Silver Shirts, and that he saw 2,000 rounds of ammunition and was told where 12,000 more rounds were hidden. The "soldiers" were armed with rifles, shotguns and pistols.

As far as we know, there is no law against citizens meeting for military drill, but such activity usually has some object, and in this case, the investigators say, they were told the Silver Shirts intended to take charge of the U. S. government. Under our democratic system that is usually accomplished thru balloting at the polls, and not by any coup or armed "punch."

No matter what the color of a man's shirt, he has no business plotting to seize the government by force. If he wants to organize a party and carry on a regular election campaign and take his cause to the voters, all well and good; but he must abide by the decision of the people at the polls, and if he does not, he will find plenty of patriotic citizens ready to take the shirt off him, and that right early.

Stolen Arms

Comes the federal government with a report that in the past two years the underworld has stolen 1,027 guns and 23,110 rounds of ammunition from national guard armories throughout the country. Thus the military has furnished enough arms to equip a regiment to the use of criminals. Ten of the guns were of the machine type, the most deadly that can be found.

Illinois National Guard posts are among those raided. The Washington government has been checking up on the depredations thruout the country, and the Department of Justice is convinced the underworld will be able to operate effectively as long as it can get arms and ammunition. The War Department will ask state authorities to be more careful in protecting the national guard supplies.

The losses furnish an indictment of the states in their failure to keep these weapons under lock and key. Military companies should be held more strictly responsible for the care of arms. Unless this is done, the nation will continue to be menaced by a well-armed body of criminals, the worst menace for any country.

INTENSE HEAT FRIES EGG IN SKILLET ON WEST COURT STREET

Jacksonville's record high temperature Thursday afternoon had cooking power. Walter Longman secured a small skillet from the Court lunch room, placed it on the concrete sidewalk in front of Dr. C. E. Scott's office on West Court street, and broke an egg in it to fry.

Several persons watched the egg and can testify that it actually fried. It required eight to ten minutes for the boiling sun and the heat swirling up from the concrete to cook the egg thoroughly. Anyone who took a walk along West Court or any other business street where the sun got a good crack at the pavement Thursday cannot doubt the egg-frying story.

The New Deal in Washington

Roosevelt Shakes Loaded Dice on His Bank Query... Undertakers Do a Bit of Expert Coding... Now NRA Faces Another Crisis With Its Own Union.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 10.—One of those six questions Roosevelt asked us was tricky. The only possible answer seemed to be "Yes."

You remember — "Is your bank account more secure than a year ago?"

Since the first of the year, at least 97 per cent of all bank depositors have been entitled to sleep easier with the knowledge that their money was insured against loss. Congress, in the law under which the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created, saw to that.

So, even if nobody had agreed with Mr. Roosevelt that he was better off, or more hopeful or less burdened with debt, the president should have had an almost unanimous "yes" on the bank question.

But the FDIC is sorely chagrined because hordes of depositors are ignorant of this protection. As late as May, many banks were complaining of mild "secret runs."

The NEA Service has been taking a newspaper poll of answers to the president's questions which strengthens the idea that millions know nothing of deposit insurance.

Majorities in some cities replied that their accounts were no more secure; a strong minority in the poll still insists they aren't.

There doesn't seem to be any joker in the insurance scheme, however. More than 14,000 commercial banks are insured by FDIC for all accounts up to $5,000. Fewer than 1,000 are outside the system—all state banks.

The FDIC starts the payoff as soon as a receiver is named. The first payoff was for a bank in Peoria, Ill., where 99 per cent of depositors received their money in full. In Pittsburgh a payoff began the day after the bank closed.

The plan started with a $330,000,000 repayable backlog from the treasury and banks have paid in $110,000,000 to the insurance fund through a half-of-one per cent assessment, which will be repeated in the fall.

All banks admitted to insurance must be found solvent. Those insured have about 32 billions of deposits; the uninsured only 500 millions.

Some time this fall all insurer bank will be required to post signs announcing the insurance of their deposits. But there will always be folks who never found out about it.

Some Underground Coding. NRA codes aren't news any more, but just to show you the sort of thing that still goes on—

The code approved for the undertakers—known here as the "funeral service industry"—specifically barred "any form of enterprise which deceives or defrauds."

The president's order of approval qualified that to read, "nothing in this section shall supersede any state law which by its terms permits any of the practices described herein by members of the industry." But the undertakers got busy and had that modified still further, to read:

"Nothing contained in this section shall supersede any state law which by its terms expressly authorizes this industry to organize, promote, participate in, or operate a form of enterprise prohibited therein."

Another Big NRA "Crisis"

You'd be amazed to know the amount of time and effort NRA officials have put into erection of the defense of General Johnson before the National Labor Relations Board against charges that he fired President John Doe of the NRA employees' union for union activities.

They decided that this was a crucial case—that if Johnson, already unpopular with labor, were found guilty of union-busting tactics, organized labor might well rise up on its hind legs and point publicly with scorn and contempt.

Top-rank NRA attorneys were put on the case for weeks, after being informed this was perhaps NRA's most important fight to date.

The tiny NRA union was delighted with the fuss it had stirred up—with Johnson's help.

Monk Rescues Black Madonna Picture in Fire at Monastery

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second portion of a letter received from Julian Wadsworth, reporting a fire that destroyed Mega-Spillon, world famous Greek church monastery. In it Mr. Wadsworth describes the rescue of a famous painting and tells of personal experiences at scene of fire. The first part of the letter appeared yesterday.)

By JULIAN WADSWORTH
These simple religious people have held their faith less in the virtue of munitions of war than in the power of divine protection, which has been given to their monastery by an image of the Virgin which has watched over them more than a thousand years.

This holy image has been held as the most precious of all the treasures of the monastery. It is believed to be one of the very earliest paintings of the Madonna and has been attributed to St. Luke. Since 430 A. D. when it is said the Empress Eudoxia sent it from Jerusalem to Pulcheria, sister of the emperor at Constantinople, saying that it was a painting of the Blessed Virgin, painted by the evangelist, St. Luke.

Although there is no positive evidence that St. Luke ever painted it, it is known that he was Greek and that he was a physician and educated. He might then have combined with his studies in medicine the art of painting. Certainly the legends are from very early times associated with several of these so-called "Black Madonnas" thought to be the work of the evangelist. This one is perhaps the oldest and most authentic.

There are several, all evidently by the same painter, with Greek characteristics and each is so dark that it has been said the "devil mixed the colors." The evangelist has even been pictured with the devil standing behind him.

Found by Shepherd

At the time of the founding of Mega-Spillon, it is said a shepherd found the image in the great grotto and was divinely appointed to build a monastery at that place. Offerings of fabulous price have come to the sacred shrine making this the richest of all the monasteries in Greece. I have been told today the wealth of these gifts would more than pay the national debt of the government. When the Byzantine Emperor Andronic gave up his throne to become a monk, he brought this image a crown of black diamonds, emeralds and rubies that were priceless. It has been estimated today that the fire was started for the purpose of robbing the treasure.

While there is great sorrow with everybody at what may have been lost, there is rejoicing with the devout that the image of St. Luke was saved.

It was the heroic act of one of the very old monks, Evangelos Bourles who made the rescue, rushing into the burning place and to the holy shrine. He seized the priceless image, jumped with it from the window to the ground 60 feet below. That he was not killed is thought by the monastery brothers to be due to the fact that his rescuing the virgin saved his life. Twice before has Mega-Spillon, been burned. In 1460 and 1640, each time rising from its ashes. But the miracle is that it has lived so long, clinging there to the lofty mountainside with hardly any protection against fires and in a land where earthquakes are common; where Poseidon, the "earth shaker" might so easily have tumbled down the ever-changing rocks of the mountain peak. Nature has been kind to let it stand through all the centuries, once the richest, most famous and largest of all the monastic institutions in Greece. It has come in recent years to shelter only about 40 old and feeble monks. Today Mega-Spillon has apparently met its death. Hereafter only ruins will mark its existence.

Since visiting the above we have learned that the wind favored the hotel, only the windows were broken by the force of the powder and we can still have our rooms.

The lure is irresistible. Our books are packed and we shall soon be wending our way on the little donkeys up the rocky crag. Perhaps we may still have the opportunity of coming into sympathetic friendship with the old monks who are just now experiencing the greatest tragedy of their lives.

Visit Scene of Fire
July 23—It is five o'clock in the afternoon. We are sitting on our balcony looking across to the blackened grotto, where just one week ago the monastery was in flames. Even now blue smoke is seen from the smoldering ruins. A group of soldiers guard the place. A committee from the Beaux-Arts of Athens is here to find if possible some of the priceless jewels fallen in the debris. The volumes in the library have perished. Gray bearded monks in long black robes move aimlessly about, their bewildered expression showing their uncertainty of the future. Perhaps in their devotions they will be guided to go down from this isolated height to mingle among their fellow men, to follow in the footsteps of their Christ and ours who went about doing good.

JULIAN WADSWORTH.

REV. J. M. CRAPP WILL SPEAK HERE SUNDAY

ADOPT NEW POLICY ON AUTO LICENSES TO CATCH THIEVES

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 10.—Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes announced today that automobile owners whose license plates are lost or stolen no longer may obtain duplicates of the same number, but must take a new number for the remainder of the year. He said his office has discontinued issuance of duplicates in a campaign to catch auto thieves.

"Heretofore, when cars were stolen, police were notified to pick up persons driving with the original number," the secretary of state said. "Nine times out of ten the rightful owner of the plate who had obtained duplicates was the one picked up instead of the thief."

Mr. Hughes said since the practice of issuing duplicates had been halted that numerous thieves have been captured.

"We have had some complaints under the new scheme," he said. "The first thought of the auto owner is that we are trying to take his number away from him. However, when it is explained that next year he may have it back and that thieves are being caught, owners appear satisfied."

Where one plate is lost or stolen, the car owner must forward $1.00 and his remaining plate to the automobile department and he will receive a new set and a new number. If both original plates are lost or stolen, he must send $2.00 with the application. The certificate of title must be returned with one plate and a new title is issued.

However, in the case of destruction of one or two plates by fire or accident and the applicant knows disposition of same duplicates of the original number are issued, Secretary Hughes explained.

Emergency Relief Begins Clean Up of Storm Debris

Workmen from the Illinois Emergency Relief commission Friday began making the final clean-up of the city streets, removing large trees from the curb lines and lots where citizens have given the wood to the commission. The wood is being hauled to the storage lot where it will be prepared for use in stoves this winter. Just a month ago the terrific storm struck this community, and since that time practically all of the storm damage has been repaired, most of it permanently and some of it temporarily. Almost every day since the storm the temperature has been above 80 degrees, and several days has seen the mercury past the 100 degree mark, hampering the clean-up operations.

The final clean-up Friday was begun when the workmen on the project completed sawing up the trees and branches which fell across the streets and driveways, cutting it into lengths for more convenient handling.

DISH WATER HEATS IN JERSEYVILLE ON CONCRETE WELL TOP

Jerseyville, Aug. 10.—They didn't use the gasoline or oil stove in Jerseyville away, the water in the dishpan is the housewife has to do is pump or draw the pan full of water, place it on a concrete walk and wait for a short period and the water will be just piping hot for dishes.

Fred Jaynes reported Thursday afternoon that his wife has been employing this method during the heat wave. "She pumps the pan full of water before dinner," stated Jaynes, "and places it on the concrete platform surrounding the well. By the time dinner is over and the dishes are cleared away, the water in the dishpan is ready and plenty hot, too."

MAY BULK PLANT IS ROBBED OF PUMPER

Theft of a pump used to take gasoline from tank cars was reported to the police department this morning by R. E. May and Sons. The bulk plant operated by them was broken into some time Thursday night and the pump, a Viking, 90 G. P. M., was the only item known to be missing.

Negotiations Strike Snag in Jerseyville Water Supply Hunt

Jerseyville, Aug. 10.—When special mediators for the City of Jerseyville were unable to reach an agreement concerning water rights for the proposed extension of the Jerseyville water system, local officials prepared to take steps to solve the problem by abandoning the present plan if it became necessary.

Negotiations have been carried on between Oscar Dabbs, owner of the Barrel or Cave spring, and representatives of the city the past few days, but no conclusion had been reached up to Thursday afternoon.

It was reported that the water department had offered Dabbs $500 and a monthly payment of $25. Twenty-five dollars was to be paid to bind the option on the spring, and the balance of the $500 was payable upon the signing of the contract. The $25 payable monthly was conditioned that Dabbs was to attend to the pumping of the water from the Cave spring to the Union Forest reservoir for a minimum of ninety days and for time engaged over that period he was to receive a stipend of $3 per day. It was reported that Dabbs was asking $1,000 and a monthly royalty amounting to $1 per day.

In the meantime Mayor Shephard reported that the city water department had been approached with a proposition to obtain another spring a short distance from the Barrel or Cave spring.

"The source has been offered at a much lower figure," Shephard stated, "and the department is preparing to take the matter into immediate consideration. The flow of the spring will be tested. The new source of supply figuring in the situation is from a spring on land owned by Lester Goodman of the Kane vicinity."

"There are also other sources of supply that have been offered to the city and these will be taken into consideration."

Need More Water

The problem of supplementing the present water supply of the City of Jerseyville developed several weeks ago when the springs at Union Forest began to diminish in their flow. In conjunction with the diminishing flow came a large increase in the use of water by water patrons.

An order was issued by Mayor Shephard at that time requesting the curtailment of water use for all but necessary purposes. Lawn sprinkling and car washing were banned and the police were empowered to enforce the order as a police regulation.

Receiver Willis J. Spaulding of Springfield came to Jerseyville to study the situation with local officials. The Barrel or Cave spring was settled upon as one of the most desirable sources of supply. A survey was made from the present reservoir at Union Forest to the proposed new supply and estimates of the cost of construction were furnished.

Plans for financing the construction of the new water unit were discussed. It was unofficially estimated that it would cost $17,500 to lay the new six-inch pipe line from the Union Forest reservoir to the Cave spring reservoir and pumping unit.

Permission was obtained by Joseph M. Page of Jerseyville to use a number of men from the Plaza erosion camp west of Jerseyville in laying the pipe line. It was estimated that this would save the city a sum amounting to approximately $6,000.

Four-H Club Picnic

The annual Four-H club picnic for the members of the girls' clubs of Jersey county, their mothers and leaders, will be held the afternoon of Aug. 16.

The event will be staged at Homestead farm two miles north of Jerseyville, but instead of an all day affair as originally planned it will be limited to the time between the hours of two and three o'clock.

Fair Board Meets

The entertainment committee of the Jersey County Fair Association held a meeting Wednesday evening to discuss the selection of free acts and other forms of amusement for the 1934 fair which is to be held Sept. 3, 4, 5, 6.

The fair board has voted to charge a nominal gate fee of twenty-five cents during the day and ten cents at night with no charge for automobiles. These same prices were charged last year and proved a goodly source of income in defraying expenses connected with the exposition.

The annual fair catalogue will be ready for distribution in a couple of weeks.

The members of the Jersey county board of review are busy this week visiting various points in the county where reassessments have been requested. Ninety complaints were filed with the organization this season and many of these objections are being investigated at the present time.

The board investigated complaints in Elsie Monday and Tuesday spent the day in Richwoods township.

Reunions Planned

Three prominent families of Jerseyville will hold their annual reunions Sunday, Aug. 12. The reunion of the Beatty family will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Beatty on North State street in Jerseyville, and the descendants of the late Lloyd Sunderland will hold their reunion at Mid City north of Jerseyville.

A reunion of the Ryan family will be held in Springfield at the Lincoln park. William Ryan and daughter, Miss Ella, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Ryan and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ryan and family, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Murphy of Jerseyville will go to Springfield Sunday to attend the event.

LEAVES FOR CHICAGO

Miss Dorothy Dean Baldwin, South Diamond street, left Friday morning for Chicago, where she will be the guest of Miss Edna Mae Hunter for several days. Miss Hunter was a student at Illinois College last year. They expect to visit the World's Fair together.

CLUB WOMEN TO HAVE SCRAP BOOK CONTEST

Word has been received by Mrs. Herbert Capps, 1121 West Lafayette avenue, publicity chairman in the Federated Women's club, that there will be a contest in club scrap books, which will be selected according to the type of material in notices, stories and neatness in arrangement.

The best book in the district will receive honorable mention at the annual state convention. These scrap books are becoming more and more interesting to clubs as a matter of record and as an inspiration for future work. It is the desire of the chairman that all clubs will begin a scrapbook before the year starts for department work and that each club chairman will continue the record through the year. All books in the town and district should be reported to Mrs. Herbert Capps.

Delegates Return from Club Meeting

The delegates to the North Central Conference of the Business and Professional Women's organizations were entertained with splendid programs and brilliant speakers, according to local representatives. Miss Agnes Paxton and Miss Jennie Rabjohns, who have just returned from Grand Rapids, where the third Biennial Regional conference was held. The conference convened in the $1,500,000 Civic auditorium, completed in January, 1933, which is the most up to date structure of its kind in the world, with a seating capacity of 7900. The auditorium is an achievement of beauty and utility and in itself was an attractive feature to all visitors. The pentland Hotel, across the street from the auditorium, is connected with the civic hall by a modern tunnel and the guests enjoyed every attention, which made their stay a pleasure.

Many noted speakers addressed the members and guests, among them was Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman, national president of the federation. Mrs. Bowman is from Richmond, Va., and is a typical southern woman, who thrilled her audience. It has been said that she is an outstanding example of a successful four-career woman, wifehood, motherhood, business and philanthropy and president of the national federation. Mrs. Bowman spoke at the final banquet.

Another speaker of note was Miss Shuler of New York, a world traveler, lecturer, writer, special staff correspondent to the Christian Science Monitor, as well as an officer in other important women's organizations. Among others who addressed the gathering were Miss Emily R. Kneubuhl, executive secretary of the National Federation; Mrs. Eudora Ramsey Richardson, national field representative, and Mrs. Pearl Warwick, national treasurer.

The round table programs were arranged to cover the newer and more united fields of work. These were held at luncheons and the vocational addresses included the following subjects: aviation, cosmetology, motion picture industry, advertising, social service work, and many other business enterprises.

A full report of this outstanding conference will be made by Miss Paxton and Miss Rabjohns at the August meeting of the Jacksonville Business and Professional Women's club, which will be a picnic held on Tuesday, the 14th.

Drive it only 5 miles and you'll never be satisfied with any other low-priced car

The exceptional popularity which Chevrolet has enjoyed for many years has naturally had its effect on Chevrolet prices. Large sales have enabled Chevrolet to maintain consistently low purchase prices, which were recently lowered even further. As a result Chevrolet now offers you the lowest priced six-cylinder automobile obtainable—a big, comfortable car with Fisher Body styling and refinement—safe, weatherproof, cable-controlled brakes—the smoothness and economy of a valve-in-head, six-cylinder engine—and typical Chevrolet dependability. In offering this car, and the Master models, at substantially lower prices, Chevrolet hopes to repay the motoring public in some measure, for consistently placing Chevrolet so high in public favor.

FILES DAMAGE SUIT

Boston, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Eddie McGrath, Harvard baseball captain in 1931, filed suit for $20,000 against the Chicago Cubs today.

He alleged that in the spring of 1931 he made an oral agreement to play with the Cubs after his graduation. He said that Rogers Hornsby was manager of the Chicago National League club at that time and William L. Veck was president.

McGrath claimed he was promised $5,000 in cash and $500 monthly salary, which he accepted. Several other clubs, he claimed, made offers for his services but he, considering himself bound to the Cubs, rejected them. McGrath said he reported to the Cubs soon after he was graduated and he alleged they refused to carry out their part of the agreement.

GIANTS WAYLAW BRAVES 6 TO 3

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The Giants continued their heavy hitting today to defeat the Braves 6 to 3 in the first game of a series of three and to give Carl Hubbell his 17th mound victory of the season.

The big blow of the game was Mel Ott's 30th homer, which put him still further ahead of all National League rivals and only six circuit swats behind Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, major league leader.

The clout came off Huck Betts' delivery with the score tied at 1-1 in the sixth inning and started a four-run rally that decided the game.

Score: New York 6, 100 000 200-3 8 2; Boston 3, 000 000 000-3 10 1.

Cardinals Slam Ball to All Corners of Ball Yard and Take Game From Cubs 13-3

St. Louis, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The third place Cardinals added to their chances in the pennant race today by going on a batting spree which decided the second place Chicago Cubs, 17 to 3.

Six singles in a row gave the Cardinals nine runs in the third and knocked out Lon Warneke, the starting Cub pitcher, and Tinning, Joiner finished the game.

Tex Carleton held the losers to seven hits while the Red Birds collected 21. Manager Frank Frisch hit safely four times. Collins, for St. Louis, knocked his 24th home run of the season in the fifth. Galan and Stainback also hit for the circuit.

Score: St. Louis 17, 000 000-3 10 1; Chicago 3, 000 000-3 10 1.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

SYNOPSIS

The depression did not alter life at "Hawthorn," the comfortable, hospitable home of the Philip Rutledge. Caroline, their lovely daughter, entertained lavishly and the younger set swarmed there. Mrs. Rutledge spends most of her time abroad and her husband practically lives at the club. Following her mother's return from one of her trips, Caroline gives a party. The pampered Alva notes how capably her daughter has arranged everything and wishes she could feel happier about it. Caroline's parents disapprove of their daughter's fiancé, Howard Dunsworth. Years ago, Howard's father bought property from Philip saying he wanted it for a leather factory and instead he went into the soap business in competition with Philip. The families have been enemies ever since. At the height of the party, Philip arrives home with the news that Henry Dunsworth has ruined him. Howard seems genuinely shocked. Discussing the effect of the distressing news, Howard tells Caroline: "If we marry, my father will cut me off and if I know you, it wouldn't please you any more to be poor than it would me." "Is that what you think of me?" Caroline flashes back. "Well, you are wrong. I have been happy with you anywhere before you said that." A scornful glare, as the hands him his engagement ring.

CHAPTER IV

Caroline sat in a heap on the sofa, miserable and bewildered to go back to her mother and father, fighting off tears, thinking confusedly of what lay ahead of her. Life without Howard loomed as a terrifying ordeal. They had been engaged sweethearts for years. Perhaps he would come back to her! Almost instantly she despised herself for the thought, but it persisted, bringing her a ray of comfort. He would know, when he'd time to think of what they'd done, that she couldn't have meant what she said. And what if he wasn't all that she had imagined him? Just because she held exaggerated ideas of loyalty and love was no reason why Howard couldn't think more sanely of life.

It was no use—deep in her heart she knew that Howard had failed her. The thing to do was to keep up her scorn for him and wipe out her love as soon as she could. But even as she told herself this she realized that she had never loved any prospect could be so hopeless. Howard possessed her heart, simply and completely, that was the whole of the matter. She had to face it as it was.

Her mother came into the room, sitting in a strained, unnatural voice. "Caroline, are you here?" Caroline sat up with a jerk, dabbed surreptitiously at her eyes with a wet handkerchief and smiled. "How is Father?" she asked.

"He's gone upstairs to dress. Do you know what time it is?" "Dress?" Caroline repeated vaguely.

"Of course. We are still people, aren't we? Alva's usually soft voice was raspy. "Will you get into something for dinner? You're a crumpled mess."

Caroline laughed. The laugh broke. "I suppose life will go on," she said and got to her feet. She looked at her mother, started to speak and quickly stifled the words. She doubted if her mother knew what had happened to them no matter what her father had said after she left the library.

Caroline thought, too, that it would be somehow incredible to talk to the beautiful creature before her of money troubles. Alva was in a dull orange dinner gown, as meticulously groomed as ever.

The daughter's heart lifted. Her mother was a thoroughbred. Then she thought of Howard. After all, Alva hadn't yet been tried. She might be merely clinging to the things she knew. Caroline felt uncomfortable, went over and kissed her mother.

Alva did not seem to care for the caress, feeling it as a recognition of a condition she did not wish to accept.

knowledge. They simply couldn't be so badly off, she thought, that they needed to go about kissing each other!

"Do stop sniffing," she begged. "Are we to appear before the servants as ruins?"

Caroline fed. A bath, her lover had dinner given. They might help. One needed something.

Dinner was as usual at Hawthorn House that night. Fat was candles dripped lazily in the old silver candelabra on the lace-covered mahogany table. Crystal glasses sparkled as brightly as ever, the food was as good, the service not quite so perfect as Alva had hitherto required, but perfect enough to escape the notice of the three who sat at the board in a temporary truce with trouble.

The dinner went back to the kitchen barely touched. The cook eyed it in understanding silence but the waitress declared it was a shame the way they neglected good victuals, especially that delicious lobster mousse which had been at such pains to make for them.

"I guess they put their troubles," the cook remarked.

"Sure, but you'd never know it to listen to 'em. They ain't talking quite the same as usual but they ain't said a word about money since they sat down at the table."

"Where're they having their coffee?"

"In the drawing room same as always. Just as though nothing had happened."

"We'll keep your ears open. Maybe they'll talk truer in there and we can find out what's going to happen to us."

The girl gained nothing to report. Mrs. Rutledge retired early to her sitting room upstairs. Mr. Rutledge went up too. Caroline received a few friends who dropped in but departed early because, as they told her frankly, she was deadly dull.

Caroline made no attempt to hold them, as she had made no attempt to entertain them. She could think of nothing but Howard. Waiting to be called to the telephone, to hear him at the door.

At twelve, in a quiet house, she went to bed, and tried to read herself to sleep with a mystery story. Just before dawn she turned out her bed lamp and did not need to turn it on again.

She slept past the hour of her breakfast tray. When she awoke the tiny clock that once had graced the dressing table of Marie Antoinette startled her with the lateness of the morning.

Her mind was instantly cleared of sleep. She wondered if her father had left the house. She wanted to talk with him. She rang a summons. The maid could take a message to her father, asking him not to go until she had seen him.

Busy in the bath, running the tub, adding the bath crystals, she did not count the moments as they slipped by. But she was about to throw off her negligee she decided to ring again. After a reasonable wait she rang a third time, keeping her finger on the bell to indicate her impatience. She listened, and presently heard steps outside her door. There was a knock.

"Come in," she called.

It was her father who opened the door.

"What's happened to Hilda?" she asked. "Here is she."

"Hilda, my dear, has departed, with the cook and the waitress. The chauffeur and the outside men will go this afternoon. Also the laundress."

Caroline was a trifle stunned. "But..." she began vaguely.

"I know," her father interrupted, "you haven't breakfasted. Neither have your mother and Alva. Alva's struggling now with a contraction she's never seen before—a drip pot I believe it's called. I wonder if I could help her. Otherwise I'm afraid we'll be quite without coffee when you get up."

"Funny," Caroline said mirthlessly. "But I've never made coffee. One of the boys always did it when"

Families Homeless as Floods Deluge Morehead Kentucky

Morehead, Ky., Aug. 10.—(P)—Between 15 and 20 families were driven from their homes here today by floods due to tremendous rains that were reported to have extended through Rowan and Carter counties as far east as Grayson.

Triplet Creek rose two and a half to three feet in places and halting traffic east of here towards Grayson. Farmers in Rowan county whose crops already have suffered by too much rain reported they feared potatoes and other crops would be a total loss. No loss of life was reported.

Telephone communication was down to Olive Hill and Grayson in Carter county, but passengers arriving on a Chesapeake and Ohio train reported had driven some families from their homes at Hitchens, 30 miles east of Morehead, and that in places, chiefly in Carter county, the tracks were covered by water.

Rain started here at midnight and local estimates were that it amounted to 6 inches in a steady fall accompanied by thunder and lightning. The rain diminished here around 9 a. m. but it was still cloudy.

School to Open Soon;
All Rural Teachers
Engaged in County

Within a month several thousand Morgan county children will again be in school rooms. Most of the rural schools will open on Monday, September 3, while city schools will be opened later. All rural schools have engaged their teachers for the term 1934-35, with the exception of a few that will not open this year. James Trahey
Dies at Home
Here FridayVeteran Policeman Is
Victim Of Heart Attack

James J. Trahey, 74, dean of Jacksonville police officers, died suddenly at his home, 537 Hardin avenue, Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mr. Trahey was stricken while talking to his sons and some neighbors. He was removed to his bed and a doctor summoned. When the physician arrived he pronounced the veteran policeman dead.

Mr. Trahey was born in Jacksonville 74 years ago, the son of Jeremiah and Sarah Ryan Trahey. After receiving his education in the parochial schools he entered the employ of the Jacksonville and Southeastern railroad as water boy on the section. He later entered the train service and for many years was employed as a switchman.

For several years he was yardmaster for the Illinois Central railroad at Memphis, Tenn., having charge of the large yards there. Later he went west where he worked for the Union Pacific railroad, being located at Leadville.

He afterward entered the employ of the Armour Packing company at Kansas City, being foreman of the railroad yards for that company.

In 1898 Mr. Trahey returned to Jacksonville and in 1899 was appointed to the day police force by Mayor S. A. Fairbank. He served as patrolman thru the Fairbank administration and continued under Mayors John R. Davis and C. H. Widmayer. He retired from the force in 1908 to engage in the grocery business.

When George W. Davis was elected mayor in 1911, Mr. Trahey was appointed night captain of police, serving until 1917 when he again retired from the force to engage in business.

Named Desk Sergeant.

When Mayor E. E. Crabtree was elected mayor in 1919, he appointed Mr. Trahey night desk sergeant. He continued to serve as sergeant under Mayor John J. Reeve, a total of 14 years. On May 16, 1933, Mr. Trahey was retired on a pension having reached the age limit.

Mr. Trahey was known as an efficient and honest officer. During his 30 years on the force he captured many thieves and assisted in solving several murder cases.

He had a wide circle of friends to whom he was always loyal. The down-and-outers were always assisted by Sergeant Trahey and many a transient who called at the police station was fed thru the generosity of the veteran policeman.

On August 23, 1898, Mr. Trahey was united in marriage to Miss Alice Longman of this city, the wedding taking place at Kansas City. They came to Jacksonville shortly after their marriage. Mrs. Trahey died two years ago.

Mr. Trahey is survived by five children: Mrs. Charles Gilhofer, Cairo, Ill., and Louise James J. Jr., Jeremiah and Thomas C. Trahey, all of this city. He also leaves one brother, Jeremiah Trahey, who is a member of the Kansas City police force. Several brothers and one sister preceded him in death.

He was a member of the Church of Our Saviour and a charter member of the Knights of Columbus.

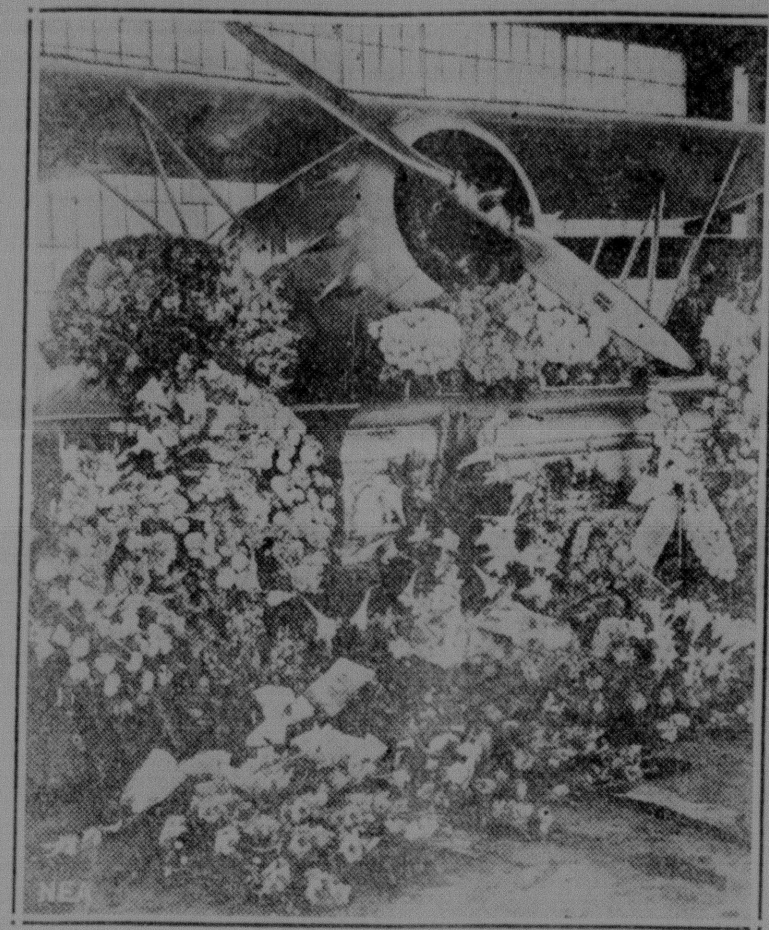

The remains were removed to the John M. Carroll funeral home.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the Church of Our Saviour. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Coroner E. O. Sampson impaneled a jury at the Trahey residence for an inquest. The jurors found that death resulted from a heart attack.

Members of the jury were: Y. D. Day, Henry Toensman, James Dollear, William Crouse, Emmett Shannon and Roscoe Wright.

Winchester Girl Is Seriously Burned; Two Men Injured

Miss Lucille Coultas of Winchester was seriously burned, Dr. T. R. Cooper of this city suffered severe cuts and bruises about the head and Wayne Swinford, also of this city, suffered minor injuries when the Cooper car in which the three were riding overturned and was destroyed by flames about six miles west of the city about one o'clock this (Saturday) morning.

The three were brought to Passavant hospital by Jay McCubbin of Chambersburg, and after treatment Swinford was able to leave for his home. Miss Coultas and Dr. Cooper remained at the hospital. Miss Coultas' condition is described as serious.

McCubbin, who was driving toward his home, arrived at the scene of the accident shortly after it happened. He placed the injured persons in his automobile and rushed them to the police station here. Captain Mann and Patrolmen Ernest Strawn and Charles Smith assisted in taking them to the hospital.

McCubbin told police that he saw a flash and that the car had apparently turned over and broke into flames near the Point church.

A motorist whose name could not be learned said that he was near the scene of the accident. He reported that the car was running ahead of him and that it apparently struck a tree which had fallen across the road during the storm. After striking the tree the car swerved off the road, hit a culvert, turned over and burst into flames.

The trio were enroute to Jacksonville from Winchester when the accident happened. Dr. Cooper and Swinford had been to Winchester and Miss Coultas who is employed here was returning to the city with the local men when the accident happened. The car, a new Chevrolet was completely demolished by the fire.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ora B. Likes of Oxville and Miss Nina at home, seven grandchildren, several other relatives and a host of friends.

Storm Hits City Just
Month After Tornado
Bringing Rain, Hail

Striking with much of the fury of the storm which swept the city a month ago almost to the hour, Jacksonville and vicinity were given relief last night from the torrid temperatures which had caused this community to swelter and sizzle for the past four weeks, with little respite during that time.

The belated cool wave from the northern regions arrived last night about eight o'clock and dished out a mixture of a blinding dust storm, a hailstorm, a dashing rain and an unusually heavy electrical display. Within a short time after the storm struck, the mercury skidded downward from the 95 degree mark to 75 degrees.

After the first general downpour which lasted nearly one-half hour, a heavy, soaking rain set in and brought long and much-needed moisture to the parched and baked soil of this vicinity. It was estimated that more than an inch of rain had fallen by midnight, and was of sufficient quantity to at least provide temporary relief from a threatening scarcity of water. From reports obtained from neighboring towns, the rain appeared to be rather general.

Dust Hampers Traffic

The dust storm which preceded the rain disrupted traffic for a short time and made driving hazardous. The wind blew hard enough to dislodge and finish breaking off limbs on the trees which were torn and twisted by the storm which struck the city recently. Many of the streets in the south and west portions of the city were littered with branches and twigs. In several places the sewers clogged up with dirt and general small debris which had accumulated during the drought and the streets were filled with water to a depth of six to eight inches.

George Wilson, living six miles south and west of this city and one mile east of Lynchville, reported that all the trees around his place, including a large orchard had been broken down, a part of the roof was torn off his barn and the windows were broken out of the house. Mr. Wilson stated the hail was very destructive, stripping blades off the corn and the leaves off the trees in his vicinity. The house suffered from water damage caused after the windows were broken and blown out.

Mr. Wilson stated that the storm appeared to be just a narrow streak and just before it struck he and his wife took refuge in an outdoor cellar. He also said the storm appeared to be rather high as the trees which were broken were snapped off twelve or fifteen feet from the ground.

Trees Blown Down

Several trees were blown across the roads in the vicinity south of Point Church, one large tree blocking traffic on the hard road for about one-half hour and another tree falling on the telephone lines and breaking off direct communication between Jacksonville and Winchester. Lines to Mercedosa, Griggsville and Pittsfield were also reported out of order.

Pike county, which had been in the grip of the drought for nearly three months, received relief, hard rains being reported by Baylis, Bluffs, Pittsfield and vicinity. A severe wind and rain storm was reported to have struck Hannibal, Mo.

Winchester appeared to be near the south edge of the storm, and last night received the first rain of any consequence since June 22. The rain was not accompanied by wind or hail. Waverly reported that only a light rain had fallen there along with much lightning. A large barn owned by Mrs. Nora Twist of southwest of New Berlin, and filled with hay only yesterday was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, causing a conflagration that could be seen for many miles.

A hard rain and electrical storm hit Virginia but no severe damage was reported. A barn owned by John and Frank Devlin, about two miles southeast of Philadelphia was struck by lightning and destroyed. Motorists reported seeing three burning buildings between Jacksonville and Virginia, thought to have been set afire by the lightning.

VALUATION OF PROPERTY FALLS
IN GREENE COUNTY

Total For County $45,000
Less This Year Than in 1933

Carrollton, Ill., Aug. 10.—The valuation of personal property in Greene county as returned by the township assessors is steadily growing smaller each year. The total for the county is $45,000 less for 1934 than for 1933. Only two townships in the county showed an increase. Carrollton shows an increase of $29,964.00. The other eleven townships show a loss of $118,300.00. The total value of personal property for this year is placed at $1,964,796.00. For the year 1933 it was $2,083,096.00. Twenty-five years ago, in 1909, with very few automobiles or radios or other electrical inventions that have become common now, the assessors' returns on personal property totaled $8,898,235.00, a shrinkage of $3,933,436.00. Personal property alone in 1909 had a valuation almost equal to the combined value of real estate and personal tax of today. Following are the figures for personal assessment of some townships for the years 1934, 1933 and 1909:

Townships.	1934	1933	1909
Athensville	$ 42,745.00	$ 44,775.00	$ 90,490.00
Carrollton	461,675.00	418,260.00	1,335,095.00
Kane	105,000.00	123,800.00	433,405.00
Patterson	146,905.00	149,400.00	232,795.00
Roodhouse	273,070.00	297,160.00	583,010.00
White Hall	401,894.00	371,930.00	1,298,815.00

Getting down to facts, for every dollar's worth of taxable personal property in Greene county today, there were a little over three dollars' worth twenty-five years ago.

News Notes

The Methodist Missionary society of Kane met Friday at the home of Miss Ella Dodson. Mrs. John Wehrly, the president, presided. The subject of the address of the day was "Women in Malaya."

The Anti-Carls of the Kane Baptist Sunday school held a picnic supper Thursday night at the home of

DONALD CROWE,
MISS PATTERSON
WED IN RIVERTON

Riverton, Aug. 10.—Miss Winifred Patterson became the bride of Donald Crowe of Jacksonville, at 10 a. m. Thursday in St. James Catholic church. Rev. J. J. Holmes, pastor, read the marriage vows.

Miss E. Roseberry presided at the organ during the high mass, which followed immediately after the vows were spoken.

Miss Catherine Patterson, sister of the bride, and Clarence Crowe, brother of the groom, were the attendants.

The bride was attired in a gown of white tulle with a floor length veil. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and baby breath. Miss Catherine wore pink orpandy with accessories to match and carried pink rosebuds.

The altars were beautifully decorated with cut flowers, potted plants and large ferns. After the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served to immediate relatives and friends at the bride's home.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. Thomas Crowe of Jacksonville, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Crowe, also of Jacksonville, Miss Winifred Kelly of Crawfordsville, Ind., and Mrs. Margaret Brewer of Lombard, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Crowe will make their home here after a short wedding trip.
